

SARAH HEYWOOD

Sarah's love of working in clay, along with her interest in historic pottery, has now led her to make small keepsake pots on which she can use pattern and colour, which were so much part of her days when she worked in textiles.

She strives to make keepsake pots to hold the special little tokens that we collect through our lifetime. They are hand built from porcelain using the traditional method of coiling, which brings a personal and irregular quality to her work. She mixes her glazes from raw materials to create glazes that compliment and contrast with each other in their colour and texture.
